Administrative Assignments / Contribution to corporate life

Dr. Keshav Patel is an accomplished Assistant Professor in Journalism, bringing over a decade of diverse experience in both print and television media. His career has been marked by significant roles as a TV journalist, producer, reporter, and divisional head, where he successfully handled editorial responsibilities and produced several acclaimed programs, including Pyar ki Social Networking, Mout Ke Soudagar, Ummidon ka Safar, Tan Bana Taksal, Bhooton Se Kam, Mahasamar, Sawal Aapka Hai, and Amrit Snan. One of his notable contributions was a special story on the transgender marriage festival Koovagam, titled Ek Vivah Aisa Bhi.

In his administrative journey, Dr. Patel led the entire process of obtaining a news channel license and successfully launching it. His extensive media expertise has resulted in the publication of numerous thought-provoking articles in leading newspapers, magazines, and websites, covering a broad range of topics from politics to social issues.

Dr. Patel holds a Ph.D. in New Media and maintains a profound interest in the indigenous life and literature of India's tribal communities, alongside Indian mythology and grassroots human issues. His passion for education and communication has enabled him to merge journalism with academia seamlessly. He has also held influential positions in several esteemed media institutions across India.

A distinguished scholar and author, Dr. Patel has published the book Implications and Impacts of New Media, which was launched in Malaysia, as well as his debut Hindi novel Raag Makkari – Ath Campus Katha, both of which earned bestseller status on Amazon. In addition to these works, Dr. Patel has published five additional books across Sri Lanka, Indonesia, and India.

Dr. Patel's academic influence extends globally through research papers presented at international conferences in countries such as Sri Lanka, Malaysia, Thailand, South Africa, Turkey, and Azerbaijan. His multifaceted career reflects a deep commitment to journalism, education, and research, with a focus on bridging media, culture, and social change. Moreover, he has published more than 30 Research Article in various International and National Scopus and UGC CARE-listed journals.
